How will you remember it?

Sunday's 21-14 loss was disappointing. But the Bears were playing for a spot in the Super Bowl. Who would have guessed that after a winless preseason? The Tribune asked online readers how they'll remember the season. Here's a look at the nonscientific results as of 8 p.m. Sunday.

Excited. They were close to being champions.

34%

Satisfied. They were about what I expected.

48%

Disappointed. No Super Bowl? Changes are due.

What now?

Now that the Bears don't have another opponent to prepare for, they can turn their attention to the offseason.

Because of uncertainty over the collective bargaining agreement, the Bears can't be sure of when free agency will begin. The only certainty is the draft will be held April 22-23.

Draft preparations continue this week at the Senior Bowl and in late February at the NFL combine. The loss to the Packers should help the Bears identify their draft needs. TRIBUNE

Total shock

Bears fans in disbelief after loss at Soldier Field to rival Packers

After watching his team lose one of the most-anticipated NFC championship games ever to their biggest rival, Bears fan Greg Bruno felt like a scorned lover.

"It feels like I was just broken up with," Bruno, of Tinley Park, said outside Soldier Field, his voice hoarse from screaming. "Or like I just caught my girlfriend cheating on me."

Across the Chicago area Sunday night, Bears fans had the dazed look of someone in mourning. Some used words like "devastated" and "heartbroken" to describe their feelings as Packers fans from Soldier Field to Wisconsin celebrated their team's return to the Super Bowl.

Before kickoff, Bears fans were energized by a rousing rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by fan favorite Jim Cornelison, who regularly sings the national anthem at Blackhawks games.

But their mood quickly soured after the Packers took an early lead. As Green Bay quarterback Aaron Rodgers ran for a touch-

BRACING FOR IT

Some Bears fans worried about how they would respond to Packers fans, who now had major bragging rights over them.

"Returning to Wisconsin is not going to be fun," said Karin Haddon, a Bears fan from Brookfield, Wis. She said her friends and neighbors, who are all Packers fans, would be gloating "for at least a year, or until we beat the Packers again."

down on the Packers' first drive, Kwadwo Anning, 26, of Bolingbrook, looked to the ceiling in exasperation.

"I'm still up," Anning said a few minutes later, standing a few feet from a giant projection screen at Joe's Bar in Chicago. "I've been a fan through every team since 1985. I'm not going to give up now."

But with the Packers winning 14-0 at halftime, Bears fan Jerry Freda grew frustrated.

"It looked like they were sleepwalking when they came out," said Freda, 62, of Palatine. "There doesn't seem to be any sense of urgency."

After an interception returned for a touchdown put Green Bay ahead 21-7 with 6:12 remaining, dozens of Bears fans began leaving Soldier Field and Packers fans began an early celebration.

"Yeah, baby! We're going to the Super Bowl!" Packers fan and Racine native Joe Peterchak shouted at the near-empty Tavern at the Park in Millennium Park with his wife and 7-year-old daughter.

The Bears, however, were not finished. A 35-yard touchdown reception by Earl Bennett sent fans running back to their seats with the Bears down 21-14 with 4:43 left.

But after emergency quarterback Caleb Hanie threw an interception with 37 seconds remaining, sealing the 21-14 Packers victory, Bears fans quietly headed for the exits. Outside Soldier Field, Danny Souris of Naperville blamed the Bears loss on "a lack of heart."

"I really thought my team was going to put a little more effort into it," Souris said. "They were acting like it was a preseason game."

MESSAGE ME

If you know of something in social media or on the Internet that has you and your friends talking, please share it. If I use it, I'll be sure to give you the credit you deserve right here.

TWEET OF THE WEEK

@enargins
Italian man shot in head sneezes out bullet... Your move, Chuck Norris.

Like comfy jeans, creativity works

One of the things I love about working in social media is the opportunity to be creative. Even if you're tweeting only for yourself and not a brand, it's important that you aren't boring. You want people to remember you and you want them to come back.

From tweets to Facebook status updates to fun contests, if my content isn't creative, it doesn't go out. That way, I'm always challenging myself to be better and my readers, followers and fans benefit.

Some brands are good at being creative, and some really stand out. Here are three examples I've seen in the past week that make me want to know more.

Sony Pictures "The Roommate"

Sony has placed ads around the U.S. featuring a phone number. "Roommate Wanted. Must be willing to share ... everything. Killer personality a plus. Call Rebecca (866) 666-6001." If you call it, you'll get a recording featuring Leighton Meester, the star of the movie "The Roommate." While Sony still is using more traditional social media including Twitter, Facebook and YouTube, there's something really social—and simple—about picking up a phone.

Levi's The next Levi's Girl

If it works, it works. Levi's turned to Facebook last summer to find the next Levi's Girl—the face and voice of the company's womenswear line—and it's doing it again. Levi's is asking interested women to send in a short video using the company's Facebook page explaining why they think they should be picked. The winner gets a six-month paid gig working with the Levi's Guy to engage with Levi's fans on Twitter and Facebook. And one has to assume that wearing jeans to work is OK. Win!

It's hard not to like this idea. It's one part social media, one part history and two parts creativity. The MLK Reading Project lets people record and share their favorite King quotes and hear what other people are saying. "The simple act of reading Dr. King's message aloud reinforces its timelessness. Let your recording be a symbol of support," chevymlk.com reads. "Awaken his spirit in all of us."

Not only is the campaign timely because of last week's holiday, but the Martin Luther King Jr. National Memorial opens Aug. 28 in Washington, D.C. Chevrolet says it will celebrate the occasion by adding new content between now and the opening.

Three social media campaigns, three different ideas, one result: social media engagement that benefits customers and the companies. What creative uses of social media have caught your eye lately? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. Be as creative as you want to be.

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

- Eligible participants must:
- Be 18 years or older
 - Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
 - Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

An American Airlines jet takes off last year at O'Hare as work continues on the airport's runway expansion project. TRIBUNE FILE

Holding pattern

O'Hare, Daley mired in legal battle over airport expansion

Chicago Tribune

On a blue-sky day in September 2005, the federal government cleared the expansion of O'Hare, and a beaming Mayor Daley compared the historic event to the city's rebirth after the Great Fire of 1871 and reversing the flow of the Chicago River.

"What a day! White Sox clinch the division, and we are at a groundbreaking today," Daley said, standing on the site of the first new runway as an earthmover scooped dirt.

O'Hare modernization was supposed to be the capstone to Daley's legacy. But that northern runway has been the only new airstrip completed in almost 40 years in Chicago.

Barring a last-ditch deal between the airlines and the city, Daley likely will hand his successor litigation and acrimony that could stretch for years in place of new runways and passenger terminals that were envisioned to secure the airport's future and ease a bottleneck in the center of the nation's commercial air-traffic system.

Any buildup of congestion at O'Hare often cascades across the U.S., causing thousands of passengers at other airports to suffer delays or canceled flights. When O'Hare sneezes, the saying goes, airports around the country catch pneumonia.

A lawsuit filed last week by United and American airlines against the city may spell the end of a close alliance between Daley and O'Hare's dominant carriers that has served both sides well.

Now they are embroiled in a contract dispute: Can the city forge ahead on the expansion project's $3.4 billion final phase without approval from carriers responsible for about $2 billion of that cost? United and American claim their veto rights are guaranteed in master lease agreements that expire in 2018. The city said it intends to sidestep them by postponing repayment of the airline-related debt until 2019, when the leases are no longer in effect.

A Cook County Circuit judge has set hearings for Feb. 22 and 23 to decide whether to halt the project while the matter is litigated, as the airlines requested. The issues leading to the rift between the city and its former allies, however, are tangled in money and ego and could linger for years, sources said.

"The mayor, who is running out of time to cement his legacy, has a lot of political prestige invested in seeing the project continue despite the obstacles," said Joseph Schwieterman, a transportation expert at DePaul University.

After three years of talks, the city and airlines still can't agree on a timetable for a greatly downsized version of the airport's overhaul.

Police find drugs after tip

Chicago Police arrested three men when they found cannabis, LSD and cash early Saturday. About 2:30 a.m. Saturday, police raided a space in the 2100 block of South Kedzie Avenue after receiving an anonymous tip from a citizen, according to a release from police News Affairs. They discovered a cannabis growth lab with a "large number of mature marijuana plants." They also found a small amount of LSD and approximately $900 in cash, the release said.

Woman wounded on North Side

A woman in her 20s was critically wounded when she was shot in the back early Sunday on the North Side, police said. About 3:30 a.m., a woman was in front of a club in the 2200 block of North Ashland Avenue when she suffered a gunshot wound to her back, according to police. Green Dolphin Street is located at 2220 N. Ashland Ave.

Rep. Rush holds hearing on South Side

At an emotionally-charged hearing on the South Side on Saturday, U.S. Rep. Bobby Rush (above) grilled top law enforcement officials about whether they respond forcefully enough when African-American and Hispanic children are reported missing or potentially abducted. "I want to find out if there is a double standard and if there is, we want to erase it right here, right now," Rush told a panel of officials from the Chicago police, FBI and other agencies at the three-hour hearing.

Woman faces charges in infant's 1987 kidnapping

7 RALEIGH, N.C. A Raleigh woman suspected of abducting an infant from a New York City hospital more than two decades ago is scheduled to appear in court Monday on federal kidnapping charges.

Ann Pettway, 49, surrendered Sunday at an FBI office in Bridgeport, Conn., said Pam Walker, a spokeswoman for the North Carolina Department of Correction.

Pettway had been wanted on probation-violation charges in Wake County.

But federal investigators wanted to talk with her about the abduction of Carlina White, who was 19 days old when she disappeared from Harlem Hospital in 1987.

According to several published reports,

Carlina had been taken to Bridgeport, where she was raised as Nejdra Nance.

She had doubts about Pettway being her birth mother, and as an adult living in Atlanta she called the Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Center investigators showed her a baby photo of Carlina White from their archives, which bore a strong resemblance to photos of herself as a baby taken by her Connecticut family.

Carlina White was reunited with her birth mother, Joy White, last week after DNA tests confirmed her identity.

Neither could be reached for comment Sunday. Pettway, who was in custody, also was unreachable. She was to appear in federal court in New York on Monday to face kidnapping charges, U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara said.

Carlina White told The New York Post that seeing her real mother for the first time "felt like a dream."

"When I look at her, I can see me," she said. "With that other lady, I would always be searching for stuff we had in common, but I had nothing in common with her."

In addition to being convicted of embezzling last year in Wake County, Pettway also has criminal convictions in Connecticut for forgery and impersonating an officer, state records show.

State of the Union address set for Tuesday

9 WASHINGTON President Obama's State of the Union address Tuesday is likely to ignite a clash with Republicans over the federal deficit and the pace of budget cuts, an issue that may dominate the political debate this year.

STATE OF THE UNION
8 p.m. Tuesday

The No. 2 Republican in the House of Representatives, Eric Cantor, said Sunday his party would demand "serious spending cuts" in an array of federal programs.

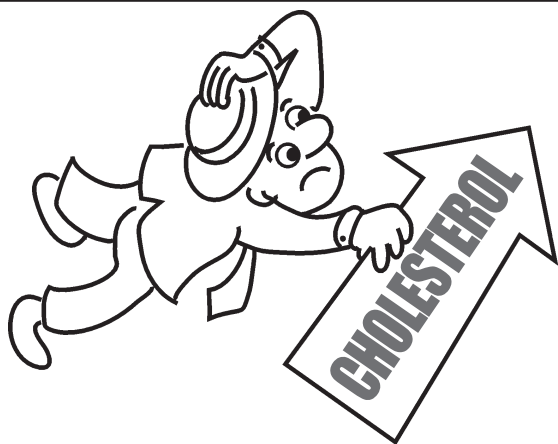

Obama has signaled he will call for efforts to tackle the long-term problem of high annual deficits and surging debt in his nationally televised annual address Tuesday, but he and his advisers also want to calibrate the pace of the fiscal pullback.

GREEN BAY 21, BEARS 14

MONSTER MELTDOWN

BEARS CAN'T MATCH OFF-THE-CHARTS EXPECTATIONS

RedEye

Epic. Colossal. Monumental. For a whole week, every superlative in the book was attached to Sunday's NFC championship game between the Bears and Green Bay. And what a massive letdown for Chicago. The Bears woke up too late as their season ended on the most sour note possible: with a home loss to their most hated rival. RedEye breaks down the hype compared to reality of five key factors of Sunday's game.

HYPE METER

RODGERS IN CHARGE

Hype: Aaron Rodgers' playoff numbers entering Sunday: 546 yards. Six touchdowns. No interceptions. That's mighty impressive. Could the Bears defense cool him off?

Reality: No. 12 looked unstoppable early, making the Bears secondary look invisible on the Packers' first touchdown drive. He capped it with a bootleg run for the score. Rodgers' effectiveness did decrease as the game wore on—the Bears intercepted him twice, including once in the red zone. He finished with “only” 244 yards passing, but he also made the Bears pay with his feet, picking up 39 rushing yards on seven carries.

HYPE METER

WATCH YOUR STEP

Hype: Packers receiver Greg Jennings said this week that Soldier Field's grass is “probably the worst” in the NFL, and Bears cornerback Charles Tillman echoed those criticisms. Would the infamous turf be a home-field advantage?

Reality: The Bears benefited immediately, as Green Bay's James Starks stumbled after returning the opening kickoff just 12 yards. However, the Bears slipped on two key plays later in the game. Brian Urlacher whiffed trying to make an open-field tackle on running back Brandon Jackson in the second quarter, and that drive ended in a Packers touchdown. And in the third quarter with the Bears needing a spark, Devin Hester slipped after fielding a punt with no would-be tacklers in sight.

HYPE METER

JAY OF RECKONING?

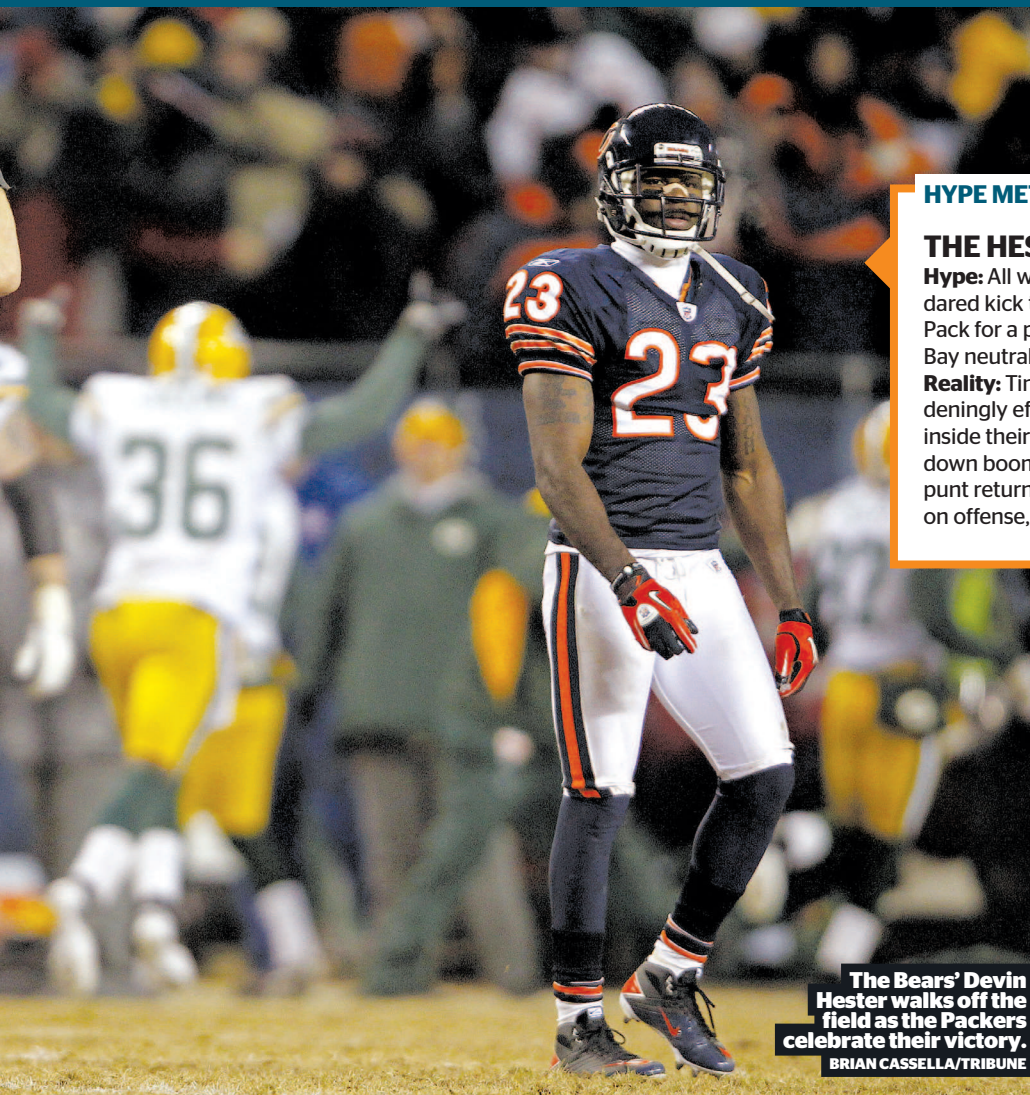

Hype: Which Jay Cutler would show up: the one who torched the Seahawks in the divisional round, or the one who threw the game-sealing interception in the season finale against Green Bay?

Reality: Ouch. This was not the absolute worst the Bears have seen from Cutler, but he did little to help their cause. He was off-target on several deep passes when he had Devin Hester open, and he was picked off near the goal line at the end of the first half. Cutler limped into the locker room after that drive and played just one series in the second half before sitting for good with a bum knee. We'll never know if he could have led a Bears comeback, but going 6-of-14 for 80 yards did not bode well regardless.

HYPE METER

CHILLED PEPPERS

Hype: Publicly, the Packers were careful not to discount Julius Peppers' playmaking ability, despite holding him to just six tackles combined in the teams' two regular-season meetings. Could he do more than simply draw double-teams?

Reality: Peppers seemed to do more good than harm, though his name was not called often. He did crush Aaron Rodgers on the Packers' second drive and drew a holding penalty in the third quarter to help stall another Green Bay opportunity. Yet he was penalized for a helmet-to-helmet to hit on Rodgers in the fourth quarter, right after the Bears had pulled within 14-7. Major buzz kill.

HYPE METER

THE HESTER FACTOR

Hype: All week pundits questioned the sanity of anyone who dared kick to Devin Hester, especially after he burned the Pack for a punt return touchdown in September. Could Green Bay neutralize him and win the field-position battle?

Reality: Tim Masthay and the Packers' punt team were mad-dameningly efficient. When Masthay wasn't pinning the Bears inside their 20, which he did five times, he made Hester run down booming kicks well into Bears territory. Hester's longest punt return was only 11 yards. He couldn't scare the Packers on offense, either—he had zero receptions.

Bears left out in the cold

Chicago Tribune

It was Super Bowl or bust, and the Bears came up empty.

On a chilly Sunday at Soldier Field, the Bears and Green Bay Packers finally met in one of the most-anticipated NFC championship games ever.

With Jay Cutler sidelined for the rest of the game by a knee injury after one third-quarter series, emergency quarterback Caleb Hanie led a valiant comeback that kept the Bears close, but an interception by rookie Sam Shields with 37 seconds remaining sealed a 21-14 Packers victory.

Green Bay advances to meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in the Super Bowl, while the Bears' season ends after an 11-5 regular season, an NFC North title and a playoff victory over Seattle.

"It's a disappointing way to end our season; it's not the way we wanted to end it," Bears linebacker Brian Urlacher said. "No one expected us to be here, we know that, but it doesn't make it any easier for us. We expected to win this game, we expected to play good ... just too many mistakes. Give them all the credit. They played better than we did."

Cutler said afterward that he was unable to plant his foot and throw, and hoped the injury will not require surgery.

"I was going to keep playing," Cutler said of the team's decision to go to backup Todd Collins. "We taped it up [at half-time], warmed it up a little bit and gave it a shot, but couldn't do it."

MOMENTS OF TRUTH

5 things we'll remember about the Bears-Packers game

RedEye

Key plays. Crucial calls. Lasting images. That's what big games like the Bears-Packers NFC championship showdown give us. And there was no shortage of defining moments Sunday at Soldier Field. Here are five that likely will be remembered for quite some time—and five that don't quite match them but were huge nonetheless.

PREGAME

Epic anthem

After unrelenting protests from Bears fans over the apparent choice of Lee DeWyze to sing the national anthem before Sunday's NFC title game, Jim Cornelison got the call—and he delivered. While it seemed to lack the magic of his rendition of the anthem before the divisional matchup against Seattle last week, it still pumped up the crowd. If it was lacking, we'll give him a break. It was his second of the day, having sung before the Blackhawks game earlier at the United Center.

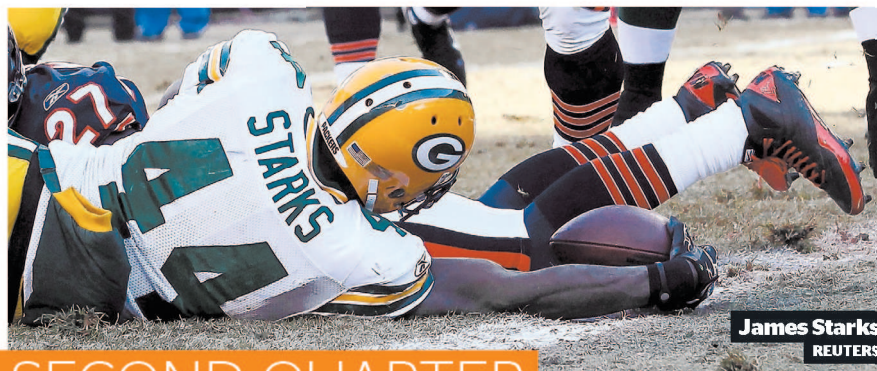

Runner-up: Terry Bradshaw of the Fox pregame crew picked the Bears to win. Bears nation should have taken that as a bad sign.

FIRST QUARTER

Rodgers runs for it

Green Bay's quarterback is well-known for his cannon of an arm, but he's also an effective runner, as he displayed on his touchdown run on the Packers' first drive. It shouldn't have been a surprise, though. He rushed for four touchdowns and 356 yards in the regular season, and the TD run against the Bears was his second of the playoffs. The ease with which the Packers scored on that first drive should have put a scare into Bears fans. Rodgers completed three passes of 20 yards or more to open the game before using his feet.

Runner-up: The Bears passing up about a 50-yard field goal—or going for it on fourth down even—on their first drive in favor of punting. Brad Maynard pinned the Pack at their own 10, but they fought their way out to midfield before punting themselves and keeping their advantage in the battle for field position.

SECOND QUARTER

James Starks punches it in

No Ryan Grant, no problem. Much was made throughout the season about the Packers' loss of their starting running back, but rookie James Starks emerged late in the season as a viable runner. He proved that in Sunday's game with his 4-yard touchdown run early in the second. He exploded to the gap, then powered through Bears defenders and stretched for the score, putting the Pack up 14-0. Starks finished the game with 74 yards on 22 carries.

Runner-up: After Lance Briggs picked off Aaron Rodgers, Jay Cutler was intercepted inside the 5-yard line with 32 seconds left in the second quarter as the Bears tried to avoid the first-half shutout. The pass was off-target, sure, but Johnny Knox did little to prevent Sam Shields from making the play.

Steelers' D sends them to Super Bowl

From news services

PITTSBURGH The Steelers advanced to their third Super Bowl in six years thanks to a big-play defense that returned a fumble for a touchdown and staged a late goal-line stand in a 24-19 victory over the New York Jets.

Pittsburgh, which led 24-0 in the first half and held on, faces the Green Bay Packers in the Super Bowl in Dallas in two weeks.

William Gay went 22 yards after fellow defensive back Ike Taylor sacked Mark Sanchez and the ball came loose. Pittsburgh then stopped New York four times inside the 2 in hanging on.

"I'm proud of our football team, and we don't need to apologize to anybody," Jets coach Rex Ryan said after the game.

The Steelers (14-4) have won a record six Super Bowls. New York (13-5) has not been back since winning the most significant Super Bowl in 1969, validating the AFL with a victory over Baltimore.

The Super Bowl is 5:30 p.m. Feb. 6.

THIRD QUARTER

Quarterback shuffle

Cutler played one series in the third quarter before leaving with a knee injury. With his exit, Bears fans feared the worst—and those fears were realized when backup Todd Collins entered the game and promptly almost threw two interceptions on successive possessions. That was enough to convince the Bears to send in third-stringer Caleb Hanie with just under a minute left in the quarter. He went on to energize the Soldier Field crowd with two touchdown drives in the fourth, but he also threw two interceptions. Fans must have looked past his mistakes, though, because they weren't spotted burning his jersey as some did to Cutler's No. 6 after the game.

Runner-up: Brian Urlacher nearly turned the game around with an interception of Rodgers at the Chicago 6-yard line. Urlacher looked to be on his way to a sure-fire touchdown before Rodgers tripped him up at the Chicago 45. So close ...

B.J. Raji celebrates his fourth-quarter touchdown.

FOURTH QUARTER

The dagger

Hanie's two touchdown drives in the fourth quarter were sandwiched around an interception that 337-pound B.J. Raji returned 18 yards for a touchdown that put the Packers up 21-7 and effectively sealed Green Bay's trip to the Super Bowl. Hanie would rally the Bears for another score, but Shields' second interception squelched all hope for the Bears.

Runner-up: Julius Peppers' helmet-to-helmet hit on Rodgers might have drawn a penalty, but it—coupled with Chester Taylor's touchdown—appeared to energize the Bears when they most needed it.

1 Say the nicest thing you can about the Green Bay Packers.	Those cheese curds they're always eating are delicious.	Sigh. OK, they aren't ALL ugly, cheese-breathing sacks of ... sigh.	You're lucky there wasn't a fifth quarter.	Being green is all the rage these days.	Kudos to Aaron Rodgers for keeping all his teeth, unlike Packers fans.
2 What's your opinion of Jay Cutler sitting the second half of the Bears' loss?	If you can't go, you can't go.	My bud Kevin said it best: He'd better have lost the leg.	You're a meathead if you question his toughness.	At least he got to see the master—Caleb Hanie—do his thing.	I'd offer it, but the words I'd use are unsuitable for print in a family paper.
3 Why was Todd Collins the backup to Jay Cutler?	Experience—he was a rookie signal caller back in the Bears-Packers 1941 playoff game.	Because ... honestly, I have no idea. I mean, WHAT. THE. HELL.	A GREAT question. Why didn't anyone on the Bears' coaching staff ask that?	To help Bears fans forget how poorly Cutler played.	Oh, I was ready to grab a Tom Collins at the half. What, you said TODD?
4 Did the game live up to the hype?	I'm sure the Packers fans booking their flights to Dallas would say so.	Yes. Yes it did. Wrong ending though.	See question 3. I watched Todd Collins try to play QB. So the answer is no.	If you subtract the first half, yes.	Just like every beating I took after high school, it lived up to my expectations.
5 What was your top moment of the game?	Caleb Hanie's near-Hollywood ending. The kid made things interesting.	The last Bears TD. This dude threw his beer at a Pack fan and said something rhyming with "beat a nick."	"... and the home of the brave!"	The end of the Todd Collins experiment.	Getting into an argument with some East Coast sportswriters on Twitter. Typical New Yorkers.

SLEIGHT OF PUCK?

There was a mix-up Sunday when Chris Pronger was asked about his puck pilfering during the Stanley Cup finals last spring, with the Flyers defenseman saying the disk "will end up on eBay at some point."

Told a Chicago restaurant had a $50,000 reward out for the puck from the Game 6 Cup clincher, Pronger backtracked.

"Oh, you mean Game 6? I don't know where that puck is," he said with a laugh. "I thought you were talking about Game 2. Game 6, I was on the bench. I was a little disappointed at that point to skate all the way down there and get the puck."

PHILADELPHIA 4, BLACKHAWKS 1

The Blackhawks' Tomas Kopecky is surrounded by the Philadelphia defense during the second period Sunday at the United Center. The Flyers won 4-1 in a rematch of last season's Stanley Cup finalists. MICHAEL TERCHA/TRIBUNE

Cup half empty

Only Philadelphia resembles powerhouse in finals rematch

With the Philadelphia Flyers in town for the first time since the Blackhawks vanquished them in the 2010 Stanley Cup finals, it was a good time to compare where the teams are this season.

The Hawks not only didn't resemble the squad that hoisted the Cup in June, they didn't look much like the one that put together a complete effort just 24 hours earlier in Detroit.

The defending champions came out flat Sunday and stayed that way, and the Flyers took advantage to record a 4-1 victory in front of 21,660 at the United Center.

Jeff Carter had two goals and an assist, Nikolay Zherdev a goal and an assist and Claude Giroux four assists to provide the offense.

Sergei Bobrovsky came up big in goal for Philadelphia, which has the look of a team poised for another deep postseason run.

The Hawks fell in regulation for just the second time in their past nine games and lost the second of back-to-back games after steamrolling the Red Wings 4-1 on Saturday.

"If we want to compare our team to the team we were [Saturday], we obviously didn't bring the speed and the tempo of our game like we did [against the Red Wings]," Hawks captain Jonathan Toews said. "In more ways than one we were just too easy to defend. We weren't on the same page with each other.

"When you come out flat against a team like that, it's not easy to come back."

The Hawks were forced to come back after Carter sandwiched goals around a Zherdev score to put the Flyers in command early in the third period.

Marian Hossa got one back for the Hawks on a penalty shot, but that was all they could generate against Bobrovsky.

Did Guillen upset Jenks?

The final day of SoxFest featured a revelation from manager Ozzie Guillen about looking ahead in the final week of the 2010 season that might prove beneficial in 2011.

Guillen said that closer Bobby Jenks told him he was ready to pitch during the final few days of the regular season.

"In the meanwhile, I wanted to see [Chris] Sale to see if he could handle the situation," Guillen told an audience while joined by coaches Harold Baines, Jeff Cox and Juan Nieves and announcer Steve Stone. "I think [Jenks] was a little upset about it. What's the difference?"

With the Sox already eliminated from postseason contention, Guillen thought it made sense to take a look at Sale, a rookie, while Jenks eventually was not tendered a contract after missing time because of calf, kidney stone and elbow injuries throughout the 2010 season.

"I got a job to do," Guillen said. "I got to see if this kid could do it in this situation."

Sale could become the Sox's closer as soon as Jake Peavy recovers from a shoulder injury, perhaps no later than May 1. But Guillen went on to praise Jenks, who ripped his former manager to mlb.com about his handling of the bullpen.

"Roberto Hernandez, Bobby Thigpen and Bobby Jenks are the toughest mentally prepared for this game," Guillen said of the closers he's been associated with.

Redhot

Warm up winter nights with lush red wines and hearty plates at four sizzling spots

By Susan Ohl FOR METROMIX

When sleeping bag-style parkas and epic cups of coffee aren't a strong enough defense against the almighty Chicago winter, it's time to resort to a good glass of red wine. We're talking complex, full-bodied reds that go down like a warm, internal hug and have enough heft to hold their own with the richest of cold-weather dishes. We asked the city's newest grape-savvy restaurants to help us chase the chill away by picking just the right reds.

Di Sotto Enoteca

200 E. Chestnut St. 312-482-8727

This late-night Italian eatery tucked into the basement of Gold Coast eatery Francesca's on Chestnut is "a whole other world to get away from winter," says general manager Miguel Braun. He recommends the spicy blended Luzón Monastrell Jumilla Verde ($28 a bottle), which packs enough tannins to enrich the texture of savory cured meats and smoky cheeses. Ditto for the Laetitia Estate Pinot Noir ($45 a bottle), which has notes of violet and sweet casis that play well with richly marbled prosciutto de parma ($8) or the portobello bruschetta ($8), layered with fontina cheese and a dash of fresh rosemary.

Salatino's

626 S. Racine Ave. 312-226-9300

At this homey Little Italy newcomer, the full-bodied, ruby hued Ajello Niero D'Avola 2008 ($8 a glass; $32 a bottle) is flying off the shelves to accompany the signature braciola ($19.95), a generations-old recipe of imported meats and cheese rolled with a thinly pounded flank steak, seared and braised in homemade red gravy that's been simmered with the braciola and meatballs all day. The Luigi Righetti Amarone della Valpolicella ($74 a bottle) has a soft finish to complement the mushroom and veal in the veal scaloppine ($17.95).

La Taberna Tapas

1301 S. Halsted St. 312-243-9980

"There's something about sharing tapas and a bottle of wine that lends the feeling of summer," says JC Castañeda. Rally friends to partake in La Mano Mencía Roble ($7 a glass; $20 a bottle), a black pepper-spiced, deeply fruity drink that adds a mouth-happy texture to the punta de res ($7), skewers of thick rib tips with onions caramelized in sherry. On the splurge-worthy side, the R. López de Heredia Viña Cubillo ($60) is a silky, sweet blend of tempranillo, grenacha, graciano and mazuelo grapes. It's just the thing to set off the smoky, nutty flavors of gallinita ($14), a cedar plank-grilled Cornish hen with almond-laced romesco and ancho chili sauce.

Due Lire

4520 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-275-7878

This cozy Northern Italian restaurant in Lincoln Square is BYOB while waiting for its liquor license, but thankfully gets an assist from nearby Fine Wine Brokers (4621 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-989-8166). Chef Massimo Di Vuolo's signature ravioli rustici ($15), filled with slow-braised short rib and sauced with porcini mushroom ragu, is best gobbled with a wine that matches the acidity of the earthy sauce, such as the velvety oak flavors of Corte Alla Flora Vino Nobile Di Montepulciano Riserva ($34.95 a bottle), says the wine shop's Scott Crestodina. The easy, crisp fruit of Pico Maccario Barbera d'Asti Berro ($10.95 a bottle) is a fine mate for the piccante crostini ($9), an open-faced sandwich piled with spicy coppa salami, roasted red peppers and melted pecorino cheese.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You might be surprised at the intense levels of passion you are experiencing with someone. Even if you're just dating casually, the moon is helping you tap into some amazing sensations and shocking feelings.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

Mars is making you restless. Get out into the world and circulate. You need to meet a lot of new people and surround yourself with fresh faces. Resolve to leave the past behind you and start having some lusty fun.

Aries March 21-April 19

A moon opposition has you wondering if you and your lover will have long-term sexual compatibility. You like to be spanked. Your partner detests violence. You enjoy role-playing. Your lover is shy and introverted. You need more time to figure things out.

Taurus April 20-May 20

You said you love one person, but now you're wondering if you love someone else. You promised to remain faithful, but an opportunity for a lusty encounter has presented itself. The moon is creating major melodrama.

Gemini May 21-June 21

You're thinking about past romances and considering getting in touch with an old flame. Saturn has you looking at old photos, love letters or sexy e-mails from your past. Remember, the person you're thinking about has probably moved on.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Trust your psychic senses. You've always had strong intuition and this week it will be in overdrive. You might pick up on someone's lusty intentions toward you. The moon has you figuring things out through invisible radar.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

Venus is inspiring you to flirt your way out of those winter blues. So what if your boyfriend left you? Find a new one to keep you warm. Who cares if your girlfriend thinks you're crazy? You can attract someone who will worship your hot body.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You could be overwhelmed by social invitations as Mercury kicks up the friendship flow. Go to events where you know you are going to have fun. Promise to attend parties where sexy someones are guests and avoid gatherings that feel like obligations.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

With Saturn going retrograde in your sign, it's important to surround yourself with people who support you. If your honey always tells you you're no good, maybe she's the loser. Stand up for yourself.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

You and your lover could discover new levels of sexual compatibility, thanks to the moon. Maybe you'll find that special spot on your girlfriend's body. Keep exploring and playing the sexual detective.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You might realize that someone who has been a long-time friend is actually quite physically attractive. Venus is reminding you that it's nice to date someone who really appreciates you as a buddy and not just a sex object.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You could have an intense discussion with someone that provides you insight about your true sexual needs. Mercury is creating a great chat with a therapist, friend or former flame that will shine a light on your deepest sensual secrets.

Xtreme romance

Back in Chicago, Jillian Harris gets love advice from Xzibit

Jillian Harris has yet to find Mr. Right, but don't feel too bad for the "Bachelor" contestant-turned-"Bachelorette" star.

Harris said she is in a happy place and finally has figured out who she is. And besides, now a designer on ABC's "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," Harris has someone looking after her love life these days.

"Xzibit gave me relationship advice the other day," Harris said of the West Coast rapper and former "Pimp My Ride" host at Public House on Friday. "Xzibit of all people."

Harris, who was hosting a fundraiser for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Metropolitan Chicago, said she has been pleasantly surprised by her fellow "Home Edition" designer.

"At first, both of us were like, 'Who is this person? We have nothing in common,'" Harris said. "After working with him, I don't think people realize, he is the best dad and he has the biggest heart. He is so creative."

The tear-jerker TV show is Harris' third reality show and first since Ed Swiderski proposed to her on the season finale of "The Bachelorette" in 2009. Harris moved to Chicago for Swiderski but returned to her native Vancouver, British Columbia, after their engagement ended last summer. She said they remain friends (Swiderski was in attendance Friday and will join her at a Red Cross blood drive at Loyola University on Monday) but admitted it took time to get to that point.

"It takes a while to re-establish that friendship," Harris said. "But I'm friends with all my exes. ... And look around this table. There are so many people I wouldn't have met if it wasn't for Ed."

To her credit, Harris is more self-deprecating and self-aware than you'd expect from someone who twice went searching for a husband on a reality show.

She begins sentences with "I know this is going to sound stupid but ..." and joked to one photographer at the bar to "watch out for the double chin."

This playfulness not only made her a reality TV star, but it also helped her fit in during her brief stay in Chicago.

"I didn't think I was going to miss Chicago so much," Harris said. "It was really easy for me to pack up and go, 'You know what? I'm going home.' But I really do miss it. I was so nervous when I moved here. ... But in the end, it felt like it was home." » For more Luis, go to chicagotribune.com/luis

Small wonder

Is "Wonder Woman" headed back to TV? NBC has roped in a pilot from David E. Kelley (who's also behind NBC's new "Harry's Law") that would reboot the superhero series, ew.com reports. Then again, NBC also tried to reboot "Bionic Woman" a few seasons ago. WARNER BROS. PHOTO

Heidi's new project

If you can't look like supermodel Heidi Klum, at least you can smell like her. The "Project Runway" host is developing a fragrance called Heidi Klum Shine, according to people.com. The perfume is expected to launch in the fall, the site reports.

TV intruder

Hide your kids, hide your wives—Antoine Dodson (left) is taping a reality TV show pilot. The Alabama man who rose to fame in "The Bed Intruder" viral video already has been filmed moving to West Hollywood, according to thr.com. The show hasn't landed a network deal yet.

THE DIGIT

$20.3 MILLION

That's the estimated amount "No Strings Attached" earned in its opening weekend to land at No. 1 at the box office, according to The Associated Press.

Flav's chicken shack

Yeaaaaah, boyeeee! Flavor Flav (left) is opening a restaurant Monday in Clinton, Iowa, according to The Associated Press. Flav's Fried Chicken is intended to be a chain, the rapper told the Clinton Herald newspaper. Now we know the flavor of love is best served with a side of ranch.

Joe Manganiello has his role in "True Blood" to thank in part for his engagement to model Audra Marie (he says he used his first paycheck to buy a ring), so it's no surprise the TV werewolf tells people.com he'll invite the cast to their wedding when they set a date. "They're like my family," he says.
